Novi Sad, Serbia

Novi Sad, the capitol of the north Serbian province of Vojvodina, is located at north slopes of the mount Fruška Gora, at the left bank of the Danube river. Novi Sad is second largest city in Serbia with a population of over 300 000. Novi Sad area consists of three districts: the largest one is the city of Novi Sad, and Petrovaradin and Sremska Kamenica are small towns located on the opposite, right hand bank of the Danube River.

The oldest part of Novi Sad area is Petrovaradin, which is populated since 4500 BC. The most successful period of Petrovaradin was during the rule of Habsburg Queen Maria Theresa (1740-1780). She built strong fortress over the Danube River and made Petrovaradin a very important city for the defense of Habsburg Empire. It took 88 years to build the fortress and it was built by prisoners, soldiers and volunteers. The fortress is often called the Gibraltar at Danube, because it had never been taken over by any army. It was military garrison and prison by the end of the Word War II. The left bank of Danube was settled during the XV and XVI century, when the Eastern Orthodox Serbian population moved from Kosovo to Vojvodina.

Novi Sad is a cultural and political center of Vojvodina. It is the home of numerous festivals, cultural manifestations, fairs and concerts. Novi Sad is the home of Matica Srpska, the oldest Serbian national library and the first public and scientific library of Serbs, founded in 1826, and Serbian National Theater, the oldest Serbian professional theatre, founded in 1861.

Being a home to different religions and nationalities, Novi Sad has 6 orthodox churches, Jewish synagogue and a Catholic Church in very hart of the city.

Novi Sad has a moderate climate with four seasons. Autumn is longer than spring, with long sunny and warm periods. The average September temperature is about 21 °C. Novi Sad is in Central European time zone, the same time zone as Paris, Rome, Berlin, Vienna, Budapest, Bratislava, Brussels, and Zurich.

Transportation

Novi Sad is 75 km northwest from Belgrade, the capital of Serbia. You can reach Novi Sad by car from Budapest, Hungary, traveling south about 290 km via E-highway. Novi Sad is east 375 km from Zagreb, the capitol of Croatia, via E-70 (A3). If you travel from Vienna, the capitol of Austria, take E-75 highway (A6 and M5), to Budapest, and than continue south to Novi Sad and Belgrade.

Novi Sad uses Belgrade airport 'Nikola Tesla' (international code BEG), which is about 75 km away. One way ticket by taxi from/to airport is around 25€ per person.

There are train lines from Vienna and Budapest to Novi Sad (continuing to Belgrade). More information you can find at site of Serbian Railroad Company:
